TEUTONS SEE IN ALLIED TROOPS' LANDING
A THREAT TO DEPOSE KING CONSTANTINE.

With Serbia overwhelmed and Montenegro surrendered to the Austrians, the allies seemed determined to force the issue in the Balkans by calling on Greece to take a stand against the Teutonic powers. A note to the Greek government, amounting to an ultimatum, is said by the German Overseas News agency to have been presented by France and Great Britain. According to a Sofia dispatch, Greece was required to deliver their passports to the ministers of the central powers within forty-eight hours, failing which the entente would take "necessary measures." "Persons in a position to judge do not agree as to the dependability of the Greek army," said the Cologne Gazette. "Apparently the king controls a considerable portion of the higher officers, and, in view of his popularity among the people, it will not be an easy matter to compel him to step out. The king has told the ministers of the central powers that they are to remain with him." There was much talk, however, of a revolutionary movement to depose the king and make M. Venizelos, former premier, president of a Greek republic. No. 1 in the pictures, Greek mountain artillery; 2, M. Venizelos; 3, King Constantine, Prince Andrew, brother of the king, and Crown Prince George.

BOSTON AVE. EXTENSION
DISCUSSED BY PLANNERS

Plans that John Nolen, the city planning expert, has prepared for the extension of Boston avenue through North avenue and back of the Park cemetery into North Main street, were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the city plan commission. Mr. Nolen was represented by George Foster of Boston, one of his assistants. The meeting was an executive one, and after it was over President Charles D. Davis of the commission said no action had been taken. He said the widening and extension of other streets was discussed in a general way.

There seems to be a good deal of sentiment that the army mustn't be increased, but that the government must talk and act as if the army was very large and powerful.

FISH FAMINE AVERTED.

Boston, Jan. 21.—The threatened famine in fish was averted today with the arrival here of five schooners with fares. No cargoes were brought in yesterday and prices accordingly were high, the advance today averaging two cents a pound. Continuance of a strike among the steam trawl fishermen and poor weather on the banks were responsible for the failure of the supply.

COLD STORAGE FOR FISH

Men's ingenuity in building hot-houses and cold storage warehouses has enabled us to have Summer vegetables and fruits in Winter, and Spring lamb all year round. The hot house was built to feed those whom the world has treated kindly financially, and even to-day remains in that position. The cold storage, on the contrary, by design or accident, is primarily an institution for the benefit of those less fortunate in worldly goods. Cold storage has been a benefit to the product and meat industries, but it has been far more for the fisheries. For vegetables, left to themselves, grow at certain seasons; meat is procurable, naturally, at any season; but the supply of fish is dependent entirely on the caprice of Nature.

As yet, the cold storage is not playing the part in connection with the fisheries to which it is entitled. It is doubtful if its true function is as yet understood by the industry itself. And until such time as the industry understands the place of the cold storage, and the truth about cold storage foods the freezer must remain misunderstood.

For the real function of the cold storage in this respect is to enable the dealers to provide the public with sea foods at those periods when very little fish is being caught and landed. It is the safety valve of the industry, by means of which the distribution of sea food is to be regulated.

Cod, haddock, pollock, hake, cusk, mackerel, swordfish—and for that matter, every other fish—has a particular season when it is more plentiful than at other seasons. Up-to-date, however, no season has appeared at which groundfish (cod, haddock, hake, pollock and cusk) have entirely disappeared from Georges Banks, Jeffries and South Channel, and the other banks frequented by the New England fishermen.

The conditions for catching the fish also vary greatly from season to season. The Spring and Fall are usually poor seasons, with gusty, variable winds, and high seas. The Winter weather, while steadier, also is mighty poor for fishing.

Weather, however, is a very poor thing to be dependent upon at any season. A sudden storm may practically paralyze the fisheries for days cutting off the entire supply of fresh groundfish. Receipts at the Boston Fish Pier then may drop from hundreds of thousands of pounds to a few hundreds of pounds. The dealers find the public demanding fresh fish just with which to supply the demand. The same, but they have no fresh fish. The inevitable happens. Up goes the price of fish. And this is most apt to happen at the very seasons when the general public actually needs cheap fish.

Judicious use of the cold storage would do much to alleviate this. There is no conceivable reason why the superfluous fish of a glutted market should not be put into cold storage, rather than be sent to the curing house of the cannery.

It is done with mackerel and with swordfish, two varieties of sea food only to be caught at certain short seasons of the year, and to a very slight extent with groundfish.

In the case of mackerel and swordfish, the freezer fulfills the function filled in the produce business by the hothouse, enables the well-to-do to consume out-of-season foods. For this reason, there is a greater margin of profit in freezing these varieties, and naturally the dealers prefer to invest their capital in it.

Again, the dealers have found the public prejudiced against cold storage foods. Although they probably could not be told from the freshly caught article by one out of every hundred consumers, the name "cold storage fish" seems to stigmatize them as undesirable.

Nothing can do the work of nature so well as nature herself. Neither the hothouse, the cannery, nor the cold storage can be expected to turn out a product as fine as Nature. But on the other hand, a half a loaf is better than none, and in these days when the average housewife is building tooth and nail with the "high cost of living," the hothouse, the cannery and the cold storage product is not to be despised, but to be looked upon as a legitimate substitute for Nature's work.

Through the cold storage alone, can the public hope to have a steady supply of sea foods at a moderate price.

COMPENSATION JUDGES
DISCUSS THEIR AWARDS

Compensation Commissioner Edward T. Buckingham today attended a meeting of the commission held in the office of Commissioner Beers in New Haven. The commissioners discussed the digest of the decisions for the last year, which will be printed in book form and distributed from the comptroller's office. The commissioners also discussed the preparation of their annual report.

The society people are having their pictures taken in skating poses. It is not necessary for the attitudes to be graceful, merely for the clothes to be fashionable.

MY TIRED FEET
ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Let your sore, swollen, aching feet spread out in a bath of "Tiz"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps o' lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture. Get a 25 cent box of "Tiz" at a drug or department store—don't wait! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You'll wear shoes a size smaller if you do. —Adv.

BEGINNERS' CLASS IN SPANISH TO BE OPENED
TONIGHT AT Y. M. C. A.

Tonight marks the opening of a beginners' class in Spanish at the Y. M. C. A. under Senor Francisco Romero, who has charge of both the elementary and advanced classes in this subject at the association. Owing to the old advancement made by the men who took up the work for the first time about 19 weeks ago, this new group is being formed, according to Mr. Keeney, educational secretary, to accommodate late-comers who need to take up the work from the very beginning.

Sr. Romero believes that, while a man may get a good reading knowledge of a new language by a study of grammar and lexicons, fluency of speech will come only as the student learns to think in the new language. This, he says, can be accomplished only by actual practice in speaking with those who are themselves fluent in the language. Sr. Romero is a native of Spain, and has to his credit a successful teaching experience in a private school of Spanish in Boston.

Contributions to the $500,000 fund being raised by the Boys' Club Association amount to $95,193.

The price of Mid-Continent oil was advanced 5 cents a barrel to $1.25 at Independence, Kan.
